Next Gen Facilitators: Changing How People Meet

Course Code
GESC2480

Course Description

- “[Facilitation is] ...the art of leading people through processes toward agreed-upon objectives in a manner that encourages participation, ownership and creativity from all involved.” David Sibbet, Principles of Facilitation
- The rapidly shifting social and economic landscapes across the globe are creating disruptions and opportunities for us. More than ever we need people who believe in and are skilled at collaborating, who can effectively guide group dialogues, enhance community involvement, leverage collective wisdom for addressing complex issues.
- Facilitators are skilled collaborators. Facilitators strive to cultivate shared purposes, multiple perspectives, team synergy and eventually a path to building communities that connect with the deepest human values of trust, empathy and creativity for the good of all.
- This course is suitable for those students who need to organize student activities within the College, guide group learning and reflection, brainstorm and implement innovative solutions for complex and dynamic issues.
